

Dr. Sumaiyah Ahmed

Assistant Professor

Jamia Hamdard School of Humanities and Social Sciences, INDIA

Dr. Sumaiyah Ahmed is an Assistant Professor in the Department of Islamic Studies, School of Humanities and Social Sciences, Jamia Hamdard, New Delhi, India. She obtained her M. Phil and PhD Degrees from the Centre for West Asian Studies, School of International Studies, Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi, India. She has been following the socio-Islamic discourses on women's status and roles in West Asia as well as in India. Muslim women's education and empowerment and the dynamics of their Islamic activism in various religious organizations across the West Asian region has been the research projects of Dr. Ahmed and she had also been studying the various discourses on poverty, justice and Indian Muslim women. She has been a keen learner of different languages and knows English, Hindi, Arabic and Urdu. She has presented her papers in different national and international conferences and participated in various discussions. Her published works describe the nature of her academic professionalism in her area of interest.
